

FOR SWEET CHARITY.

The Lawn Fete and Concert out at Altenheim last Evening.

A MOST CHARMING AFFAIR IT WAS.

A Gay and Brilliant Scene, and a Programme which offered Attractions that Enthused the Most Prosaic.
Music and Viands Mixed.

The very name breathed welcome to all who were so fortunate as to be present at the lawn fete and concert given last evening at that charming institution.

May is the month of all manner of festivals, love feasts and joy-makings.
The "uncertain glory" of all the April days is not worth one of the past two song-thrilled, rose-garlanded days.
Yesterday saw the happy realization of all the hopes of the managers of the affair. All fears of bad weather were quickly dispelled by the bright sun, which shone down on one of the most charming entertainments that has ever been given at Altenheim.

When the first guests arrived on the grounds by the four o'clock motor, they were charmed by the beauty of the scene that lay before them. The grounds never looked more beautiful.
The lawns were fresh and inviting, while everywhere violets and other wild flowers grew in profusion. In front of the building the lawns on all sides were beautified by large flower beds of elaborate design, filled with choice plants in bloom, which filled the air with fragrance.

After the guests had admired the beautiful grounds, they were invited to the main hall, where a charming reception was held by the patronesses of the affair, who greeted each guest with smiles and words of welcome. All the ladies wore handsome toilets. The following ladies received in the ladies' reception parlor: Mrs. Anton Keyman, Mrs. Dr. Swope, Mrs. Charles Burdett Hart and Mrs. Frank Hearn.

Immediately after the reception began, the handsome dining room was thrown open, and an elegant supper was served, made up of the most tempting delicacies. It was served under the direction of Mrs. N. B. Scott, Mrs. Mary A. Franzheim, Mrs. Riddle, Mrs. George Stifel, Mrs. L. F. Stifel, Miss Lang, Miss Hess and Miss Mary Stifel.

The ladies deserve a great deal of credit for the excellent manner in which they looked after the wants of all so un-travelling, the supper room being open for five hours and constantly filled.

When the 6 o'clock motor arrived, there were nearly four hundred guests on the ground, who scattered all over the premises, admiring the beautiful surroundings, and the handsome, well kept rooms throughout the institution, which were all beautifully decked out in choice flowers. The reception rooms and the parlors were especially noticeable for their tasteful decorations. In all these rooms the mantels and windows were banked with flowers and vines, creating a beautiful effect.

In the old dining room flowers and refreshments were disposed by a number of charming misses. Here, also, numerous fancy articles, made by the inmates of the institution, were offered for sale.

By dusk, when the grounds were lighted up by natural gas and countless colored glass lanterns, the scene was most bewitching.

The substitute lights, if not as romantic as the silvery beams of the moon, with their rosier hues, did radiant service. Excellent music was discoursed throughout the entire evening by the Opera House orchestra.

Among the guests were a number of visitors from other cities, who spoke in the highest terms of praise of the institution, the beautiful views from the mount and the lovely natural surroundings. All were sorry when the last motor whistled good night, and the affair had terminated.

Messrs. N. B. Scott, L. F. Stifel, Rev.
Dr. R. R. Swope, Henry Biebersson and Dr. A. P. Stifel deserve a good deal of credit for the success of the affair, from the excellent manner in which it was conducted under their supervision.

attempted to intimidate a young woman named McConaughy, late of Bridgeport, who is married, though only sixteen years old. She was working at the Brast house, and Harper says he wanted to get the girl away because a young man named Hindman, son of a hotel keeper at Sistersville, was infatuated with her. The hearing will take place to-day.

PUT BEHIND THE BARS.

Ex-Chief of Police Delbrugge looked up last Night.

FOUND IN MAY WILLIAMS'S HOUSE

And all the inmates but one lodged in Cells at the Lockup—Delbrugge Taken from his Home by the Woman In the Early Morning in the Presence of his Abused Wife—He is Released after Several Hours' Confinement and Goes Home with a Friend.

Ex-Chief of Police Louis Delbrugge spent about five hours behind the bars at the city lockup last night, and the story of his being there is an exceedingly sad one.

Yesterday morning about 1 o'clock May Williams went to his house on the South Side and called him out. She was in a hack with another woman, and the hack driver first went to the back door and knocked.

Delbrugge had been on a spree for several days, and was asleep. Mrs.
Delbrugge heard the knock, and slipping on a wrapper, went to the door.
She told the young man he could not see Delbrugge, and he went away.

In a few minutes May Williams came into the back yard, and Mrs. Delbrugge again opened the door. May called:

"Louis, you come here, — you!
I want you to come when I call you!"

Louis had slipped out the side door, and he responded:

"You bet your life I'm coming!"

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Delbrugge called on Chief of Police McNichol, and between tears and sobs told this story.
She added that the night before this occurred she was awakened in the dead of night by her husband, screaming and moaning and threatening to kill somebody.

She went to his side and asked what was wrong, and drawing a revolver, he pointed it at her and exclaimed:

"You — black Dutch — I will kill you!"

Mrs. Delbrugge said he had several times threatened her, and at times she had expected to be shot. "I would not care to live on," she said, "if it were not for the little children; I do want to bring them up right."

Capt. McNichol was much moved by her recital, and offered to do anything in his power to right her wrongs.

"Raid that house now," she said; "he is in it at this minute!"

McNichol asked her how she knew this, and she said her husband had gone with the woman in his nightshirt, and must be in the house yet.

On this information the chief swore out a warrant, and Officers Carney, Daum, Wilkie, Buch and Desmond served it. In the house they found May, five girls and Delbrugge. One woman was left to look after the house, while the others were taken to the lockup in the patrol wagon, Delbrugge being allowed to walk up. All were locked up. Delbrugge was released at 11 o'clock, five hours after his arrest.

A friend put up money enough to cover his fine and took him away with him.
The chief declared that May should remain in the cell until police court, and then be arraigned.

The case caused a good deal of excitement and indignation. It is urged in palliation of Delbrugge's beastly conduct that he is insane, and his personal appearance is enough to bear out this theory. The woman seems to have some strange hold upon him, and is base enough and shrewd enough to use it to prevent his redeeming himself even if he desired to, of which he has never given any evidence.

Friends of his better days recall the happy home Delbrugge used to have, and pity for his wife and little ones is generally expressed, while it is the general expression that the woman should be run out of town and he confined.

Stole Right and Left.

A man giving the name of Frank Moore, and employed by the Standard sewing machine company, disappeared Monday night. He was boarding at No. 88 Twelfth streets. Before leaving Moore stole $15 from his roommate, L.
W. Musser, got an advance of $5 from the Standard company and stole a gold watch worth $40 and a silver one valued at $10 from other boarders in the house.
Postal cards were sent out to the police of other cities giving a description of the man. He is 5 feet 8 inches high; is of light complexion and wore, when he left, a light moustache. He weighs about 170 pounds and is forty or forty-five years of age. He has hazel eyes and wears glasses while reading.

NOTES ON NAVIGATION.

Stage of Water and Movements of Boats.

The River Interests.

The river was falling yesterday, with 18 feet 6 inches in the channel.

The reports from above were:

Brownsville—9 feet 6 inches and falling; cloudy.

Warren—5 feet; clear and cool.

The steamer Hudson passed up for Pittsburgh yesterday, and the Keystone State got away for Cincinnati.

The Scotia and the Bachelor will leave for Pittsburgh to-day. The Andes will pass down for Cincinnati at 8 a. m., and the Lizzie Bay for Charleston at 5 a. m.

The Scotia on her last trip up made the run from Marietta to Pittsburgh in twenty-three hours and five minutes and made sixteen landings. This, too, without any effort at a fast run.

A number of towboats will get out on the present water with tons of coal.
The run, however, will not be large, as there is not much coal loaded, and besides the markets below are full and prices low.

The rumor which has obtained for some days that another boat was to be placed in the Pittsburgh and Kanawha river is not generally credited in well-informed circles. It is said that there is not enough business in the trade for two boats.

A good deal of interest is being taken in the proposed improvements of the Kanawha river. A petition to Congress was circulated yesterday in the chamber of commerce at Cincinnati and found many signers.

SOME NOVEL FEATURES.

The Barnum & Bailey Shows' new Debartures this Year.

The Barnum and Bailey Greatest Show on Earth will come to Wheeling from East Liverpool to-morrow. The trains will run down the Cleveland & Pittsburgh road to Etanville, where they will be unloaded, the wagons coming over the Wheeling Bridge Company's new steel bridge to the Island and thence down to the State Fair Grounds, where the tents will be pitched. The parade will leave the State Fair Grounds via the Penn street gate, and cross the new bridge to the city.

The managers urge on the public the desirability of having the line of the parade kept free of horses. The elephants, and especially the new spectacular features of the parade, frighten horses so as to endanger drivers as well as bystanders.

The tableaux representing the history of America and other historical and legendary subjects are something new in a circus parade. Another novel feature for traveling shows is the wooden set rings. The ground is not dug up, as it used to be, but sectional wooden guards with the track attached inside are carried with the rest of the paraphernalia, and set up at each stand.

TABERNACLE IN A STIR.

Dr. Keeley Lectures at Talmage's Church.

Interrupted by a Crank.

New York, May 17.—"Put him out!" shouted many people in Dr. Talmage's Brooklyn tabernacle Sunday night when a man began asking questions of Dr.
Lester R. Keeley, the bichloride of gold cure man. There were thousands present, crowding the great edifice to the doors, and the interruption caused intense excitement.

Dr. Talmage, on his visit to Dwight, Ill., made Dr. Keeley promise to come to Brooklyn and lecture to his congregation. Sunday night, in introducing the speaker, Mr. Talmage said Keeley had been maligned and misrepresented, but in spite of all he would continue his work of saving drunkards from the effects of the vice.

"PUT HIM OUT," THEY CRIED.

At the end of the lecture, which was mainly an explanation of his theory and his system of treatment of drunkards, Dr. Talmage catechized Dr. Keeley. He asked him how many cases had he treated. Dr. Keeley answered 60,000, and 95 per cent of his patients had been permanently cured. A man in the congregation yelled out, asking why the other 5 per cent had not been cured.

Dr. Keeley answered the question, and the man put another, showing that he doubted Dr. Keeley's word. Loud cries of "Put him out, put him out!" followed, and several ushers started for the man, but they couldn't find him.

Dr. Talmage then asked Dr. Keeley if the analysis of his remedy, which are said to have been made, were correct.
He answered that all the analysis differed and he defied anybody to analyze the remedy. He had devoted thirty-three years to the subject and made known his theory eighteen years ago.

"Why do you refuse to make known your system of treatment?" asked the tabernacle's pastor. Dr. Keeley said his cure was a system, and he could not afford to let every physician know it; they could not, for several reasons, familiarize themselves with it. Another thing, he said, he did not want the thing to get into the hands of "more quacks than those who now claimed to possess it."

AGAIN THE INTERRUPTION.

Reference was made by Dr. Talmage to Dr. Koch's lymph discovery, whereupon the man in the audience shouted:

"Is it because your remedy is more imperfect that you refuse to make known the secret?"

This caused renewed commotion, and the people again clamored to have the disturber ejected. Dr. Keeley was about to answer the question when Dr.
Talmage grasped the lecturer's hand and asked God's blessing on him. He announced that Dr. Keeley would sail for England Wednesday to introduce his remedy, and invited everybody to step forward and shake the doctor's hand.
